

More women needed

The national president of the Australian Local Government Women's Association, Kaele Way, said women were underrepresented in local government, but things could change. Ms Way was referring to The Review of the 2001 National Framework for Women in Local Government, a report presented yesterday at the Shires Association of NSW annual conference. Ms Way said there had been advances since the original report in 2001, but more needed to be done, including better governance in the sector and codes of conduct.
